Excerpt from The Duties of Defeat: An Address Delivered Before the Two Literary Societies of the University of North Carolina, June 7th, 1866 Gentlemen of the Dialectic and Philanthropic Societies: As the traveller, who, during his absence, has learned that a great fire has swept over his native city, welcomes with the keenest rapture the first glance of his own home, which he trembles at the thought of finding in the ashes of the general ruin, so should we rejoice, to behold our honored University surviving the wreck of so much that we loved and revered. - Though staggering under the blows of adversity, I am most happy to sec for myself, this day, so goodly a display of her ancient life and energy. May she soon attain to that full measure of prosperity and usefulness, which has heretofore rendered her the pride and chiefest ornament of North Carolina! Since the first keel of an European vessel grated upon the sands of the new world, and the first axe was lifted against the vast forest which covered...
